

My name is Brenda.

At the newspaper I like to help people tell their life stories and make them feel good about their contributions to society. I love to write about the good things young people do and hope it gives them self-confidence, boosts their self-esteem and lets the world know that not all kids are bad. Sharing my stories, that's how I Live United.

My name is Jeff.

Because I'm on the radio, people know me and call me when they need help. I help when I can. I served twice as the president of the Marion Evening Lion's Club, so I'm especially sensitive to those who need eye glasses and exams but can't afford them. Helping those who need help, that's how I Live United.

My name is Troy.

I donate and volunteer for the United Way because of the various programs and agencies that they support. From the homeless shelter to after school programs, United Way makes it possible for people to have an impact in their community. I believe in the "pay it forward" motto and the United Way is a viable source for continuing that tradition. If each and every person would live United we could impact, not just our community, but the whole world. Advocating for the United Way, that's how I Live United.
